About This Game

Early 1832,

You invest all of your life savings on a small plot of land and an old house located in the harsh environment of Northern Europe in hopes of a new life and success.

In this farm-building strategy game set in the inclement weather of Northern Europe, you will have to manage your land from clearing forests for farming and selling grain at the neighbouring town to building barns and eventually oil rigs and even shipyards. Your right decisions will allow you to develop, and eventually grow your wealth. The success of your farm depends on the appropriate management of your wealth and expensive resources.

It's a fun game but the store page says 2m x 1.5m and I have slightly more than that but the game does not fit within my environment and I end up hitting the walls when trying to get the seagulls or wash the sponge. So if you are tight on space I would stay away from this one.

. A pretty awesome and simple drifting game based around the Initial D anime. Sick music too!

One thing cool to add would be a time tracker of some sort to record lap time. YESSSS IVE BEEN WAITING FOR THIS :D ITS FINALLY TIME!

Okay I finished, lel.. This game sucks. There is a plot so bad that the game would be better off without one, glitchy gameplay, finicky movement and controls, and the ending is literally the game telling you to go back and do all the levels that were presented as optional in the beginning just so you can get 1 extra character. Yeah, normally I wouldn't have spoiled that, but you should know the junk you are getting into before you play this.

. Saw Countach, clicked Add to Cart.. +The main feature of this game is that it can be played by twitch streamers whos subscribers names appear in the game.

-While this is neat, its mostly just a gimmick to promote free advertising for a bad game design. If the game was actually fun to play and interesting to watch someone play, this would be a good thing, except its just the opposite.

-The problem is the UI. The UI has sliders hidden behind button menus whose sole purpose for being in the game is to make you micro-manage those sliders. This creates an artificial difficulty level, unless you constantly pause the game and waste unnecessary real time. This seems to be done purely to distract, annoy, and frustrate the twitch streamer throughout the game. Its as if it was designed for a phone using a touch screen and not a twitch streamer. Rather than making the game actually challenging- you will find yourself struggling mainly against the UI as the the sliders I mentioned earlier are pureposly designed to waste your time. On top of that you must click spam constantly to be effective and there are no hotkeys to activate your skills in the game. So you must click constantly, then stop clicking and click a skill.

By the way, when you stop to click a skill you stand still and you can be repeatedly knocked down by enemies and this interrupts your skills, putting you in an unavoidable death loop if you are knocked down a single time near a decent group of enemies.

-Strange coincidence? The troll "gallops" and steers and breaths just like a horse. Also, what troll lives in a castle? Pretty sure this orignally was a game about a knight on a horse defending from orcs rather than a troll. Its so obvious that its painful. Its almost as if there was some last minute changes due to lack of funding, a artist willing to complete the unfinished assets, or a copyright claim, or some other barrier. Its hard to believe this was done intentionally, but either way to me its a red flag signaling bad decisions.

-The game runs at 24 fps no matter what graphics setting you run it at.

-The whole stream to decide wether the game would be free or not is laughable. Its should be fairly obvious that this was the only option they had to get anyone to not refund the game within the time limit and to attempt to get a larger audiance to pay for the DLC. A good strategy.

-The real troll is the game developer for implimenting these poorly crafted systems and actually expecting someone to freely promote this painful experience by streaming it. I mean it would be a great marketing strategy, if it was actually a good game. Instead, its a dull experience that doesn't end. Due to all of the repition of the core game loop the game becomes a grind that only becomes less appealing.

+If the UI is ever completly redone, hotkeys are added, and the core game loop becomes less repetitive, with zero need to pause, it might actually work out. Check back for version 2.0 or 3.0 etc if they are still working on it, but with so many problems I wouldn't get your hopes up. What seems more likely is that another developer will try a similar idea and do it properly.. This game is based on DrugWars, that line alone got me excited and was the main reason I bought this thing in the first place.

Unfortunately it turns out that it's more or less DrugWar's very distant \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665 cousin that share the family name because their grand grand parents once had a short, drunk and passionate adventure.

This game is just not worth even this price tag, the RNG is completely awful.

Day 1, visited a loan shark, called him bro got screwed over, game over

Day 1 again, visited the loan shark, called him sir, got some cash and bought my first drugs

Day 2, after visiting my first other location I get confronted by a cop

Straight up, no warning, nothing, just a cop in my face forcibly searching me for drugs

I try to run away trip over my own feet, he catches up and the fight starts, this is where it gets really good

You are equipped with fists that do 1-2 damage

The officer has a gun that does 10-20

So what could I do? I try to run away and trip over my feet, again and again and again this happened 5 goddamn times and then it was another game over screen. Seriously? Suddenly you're too \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665 to walk? How the hell do you trip over your own feet 5 times?

OK maybe I just had bad luck, so I decided to start the game again ,survived my first trip earned some cash, bought some stuff, earned some more, and soon I was sitting on a glorious sum of $8500

Time to pay back that thug so I don't get my face blown off, go back to the starting zone, see some guys with baseball bats, run away and drop like 90% of my cash.

And at this point I decided to uninstall and request a refund, this game has nothing to do with any sort of stratgy it's simply seeing how long you can dodge the RNG bullet.. Nothing has made me more mad but love it just as much with its poor grammer is so funny but the elements that make it feel like flappy bird. honeslty if you want a game that will make you rage and have a good laugh with its this game.

A fun, quirky platformer.. If you like match-3 games, but want a twist to add a game mechanic, and a casual game, then this is pretty good. It isn't as refined as a game like Puzzle Quest, and looks like a single person project, but well done for that, and enjoyable. I really liked the middle-line barrier that resets to the middle each turn to give your half to work with, match 4 or more to blow it a row to the right and get another turn, and reasons to match items across the line. Buying powers also added to the strategy.

It is still light on the strategy, but once you have powers you want, you can tilt the games in your favor by mitigating the powers the computer opponent happens to have and eventually beat them. There is enough random chance that on harder difficulty if the computer doesn't make poor choices (that they sometimes do on easy difficulty), you might find yourself losing a few levels in. I actually preferred easy difficulty.

I watched this game on my wishlist for a while, then finally bought, and glad I did. There isn't much replay value once you found the power ups you prefer most, and beat the 10 levels once, but worth it until then. [4/5 stars]. Honestly this game should have been free to play.
as its just a simple rpgmaker with just the basic art that comes with rpg maker vx.

the game is playble but it did not leave an impression the story is weak it really feels like one of those hobby rpg maker games that you can find for free on the web.

no real effort put into it.. The first in the Lost Lands games, this starts with your son being sucked into a tree portal and you trying to rescue him. It appears a creature of darkness has been awakened in the Lost Lands, and you will need to defeat it to rescue him.

HO scenes interesting, plot engaging, and minigames fun. Recommend getting in the bundle.. Endless hours of fun and destruction
